Officials at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services say, yes, by all means. Yet with the world's richest economy, America routinely can't produce basic drugs and deliver quality health care, yet mired in the lowest-paid, most inefficient public sector workforce in the developed world. On an international scale, the United States business-savvy government is bopping along with its best days behind it. Americans still think their health care is a unifying, national priority. American taxpayers donated a nation-leading $2.2 trillion to Medicare, Medicaid and other welfare-style health-insurance programs in the last five years. "We are blessed as a country to have a health care system," President Barack Obama

A spin-off of previous arcade racing game 'Vexx' (Electronic Gaming Monthly Game of the Year 2012), 'DiscStorm' has all of the trademark Vexx gameplay, offering the option to race alone or with friends in a co-op or versus multiplayer mode. The game features all-new levels, including worlds inspired by films and cartoons. This includes the likes of Disney's Jungle Temple, Wes Anderson's haunted mansion, the Matrix's abandoned mine, the McDonalds of the world's robot factory, and Pixar's space platform. A soundtrack inspired by the same look and feel of the game, but with a heavier emphasis on synth-heavy, dance-influenced tunes. The sound is a mix of quirky, vintage synths and nostalgic chiptunes which makes the soundtrack have a distinctive, cohesive feel. The music varies in genre between speed, glitch, and psytrance. You'll be on the move at all times, so the music has to be enjoyable to listen to as you play through the game. To view the soundtrack, right click on DiscStorm in your game list, go to "properties", go to the "local files" tab, and click "browse local files". The soundtrack will be in the "DiscStorm OST" folder.On 2011-08-20, a customer of mine asked me to help her install OpenSC (Open Source Security Center) in her corporate network. We had worked out a few details and she had it running on one of our development VMs. I wasn't aware of how much effort this would entail and I had no idea how much I would hate it. Very shortly after the installation I had a nice little bash script snippet that displayed some nice progress messages. Very soon a friend of mine joined and asked me to share my script with him. I hate sharing scripts. Period. However, I did consider giving him the script because it was short (under 100 LOC), ran on one of my powerful development VMs, did not touch system directories and I had a nice wrapper script to call the installation script as a startup item (no need to add it to the startup application menu). So I gave him the script. Problem is, he was using Ubuntu, not Kubuntu. So that script didn't work. Seriously. Apparently on Ubuntu no amount of sudo make install works. It should be'sudo checkinstall' (or'sudo

Saturday, October 17, 2011 I know it has been months since I've posted anything. As of today, September 23, 2011, here is where things stand with the release of ToeJam & Earl: Back in the Groove: The artwork is finished, we've closed on the house, and we are one day away from moving. We can't really say anything about the final product, only that it looks pretty awesome. We'll know a lot more about the final product on September 30th. Audio for the game is being completely redone. It's extremely minor with most of the audio being redone. We're redoing the audio this month. If you've played T&E before, you'll know that we've had the audio for the game stuck with the original timeline which was recorded in 1996 and had way too much reverb on it. I also have an entire list of voice actors I am looking for, not just a few to play each level. The lead level designer is completing the game. In keeping with the terms of my contract, he is finishing up by September 30th. The aim is to have this game finished by next year. There are some new prototype levels, which have been going extremely well. The level designer and I are trying to get all of the basic gameplay elements completed with the new prototype levels before we start recording audio and design things up. The graphics are pretty close to finished as well. But there are a few small things to be tweaked and there are still a few issues with our new modern house which we just found out about on Wednesday. We are looking for our receptionist to move into the new house, and if everything works out, I hope to begin moving in next week. I'll let you know when we start recording audio, and I hope to have an update every month after that. Sunday, March 19, 2010 It's been over a year since I posted anything on here. I have no excuse except for being extremely busy, and working on my own game has become a huge focus of mine. I've survived being a pizza delivery person, retail supervisor, and business owner. It's amazing what you can get done when you've got nothing to do. That said, I have something to talk about. This spring, I'll be graduating college with a degree in marketing. I've always been a huge gamer with a passion for movies, but it was
