Puzzle .Q: Excel Output when sum row in SQL and allow Input On my website I want a user to be able to import an excel file and put in a word count in 1 of 14 column then when the user clicks submit, this word count will be saved in my database along with which word it was found on. My question is how do I allow input in the database, because I was thinking it would be easier to allow the word count to go in the database and if I don't allow input it won't be stored in the database. Importing the CSV file into my database works fine. So I have everything I need. I just need a way to allow my user to input a word count to and from my database. Here is my select statement:

SELECT c.id, c.message, c.inserted, c.message_receipt, c.timestamp, c.email FROM wordcount c WHERE c.timestamp >=
(NOW() - INTERVAL '1' DAY) AND c.message IN ('lorem ipsum') ORDER BY c.id DESC LIMIT 1 A: If I understand correctly, you want to have a user submit a word count and see the word count stored in a database table. First, to store the word count to a database, I would suggest selecting the last word count in a table and count the word count of the previous days in another table and then storing all of those results to a temporary table. Then, once you have all of the stored 6d1f23a050
