after a video has finished downloading (and a few seconds later, after it has been converted to the mpeg-4 format), i go into the ipod and tap on the downloaded movie on the media screen. from there, i pick the video and my preferred music. and in a few seconds, the movie starts to play. instead of playing a video from youtube, i've got my own videos available on imovie: when i sync my ipod, i get all my videos. but if the video is a youtube clip, i get the opportunity to open it in imovie and save it to my ipod, giving me a better-quality file without sacrificing video quality from youtube. and if i save the video to my ipod in imovie, i can play it in imovie when i'm working on a project. the airport setup was a snap: i just turned on my iphone, plugged it into the back of the computer and connected it to the printer with an usb cable. after that, i had a wireless network, and i had the option to print directly from my iphone. it worked fine for me. if you have a device that lets you print from the app store, make sure that you get the iphone app for your device--apple's version of iprint. this way, when you print the file, the printer paper gets set up correctly for the job. i had an old printer that supported this feature, but i got a new wireless printer. both were compatible, but the appstore version of iprint lets you print more smoothly and accurately. after i printed the'survey', i hit the 'email' button and sent the survey out. you can use the survey on the iphone or ipad to add this information to the google docs. then, the survey data can be added to the polldaddy database. it doesn't have to be entered into the database right away: i'll hold off until i get home.

it is also clear that the "open source" people don't really care about the quality of adobe's photoshop. they just want to show off how they can use it for free. it is not a replacement for photoshop (you can't open photoshop files in it). it is just free software that allows people to do things that photoshop does. i have an image i want to edit that is in the format of a png. i have no choice but to edit this image in adobe photoshop, but unfortunately it is only the older versions of photoshop. is there any way to convert this image to a format that i can work with in photoshop cs6? i heard the rumour, but i ignored it. i knew they had more to offer than just the mac and the mac only. i knew that they had a free creative cloud subscription for some time, and that meant that i could use photoshop, photoshop elements and illustrator whenever i wanted to. i knew about lightroom, indesign and premiere elements, but i had never used them. i knew that they had that other program called dreamweaver, but again i had never used that either. i was happy with my cheapo web-designing tools. when the time came to upgrade, i bought myself a macbook pro and all the adobe creative suite. when it came to installing all the apps, i went online and purchased a copy of photoshop elements 9.0.3. i then downloaded the adobe creative suite 6.5 apps: photoshop cs6, photoshop elements 9.3 and illustrator cs6. i then connected my new macbook pro to my apple tv and brought up my creative cloud account. i went through the initial setup and all my apps, all free. 5ec8ef588b
